Doug. I had wondered what I should do with my Tech High Annuals and when I read your request in the THLB I knew immediately,

You can't image how glad and happy I am to share these books for others to see and read.

I typed most of the words in the 1930 Annual. Miss Daphne Ranson stayed with me several days after school til 5 0'clock - so I could type. She asked for volunteers - but my hand was the only one raised!!

These are sent for —

Love of Tech High School

Those were "good old days"!!

FOREWORD

IT IS our desire in the publication of this volume, merely to record in simple and effective manner, the deeds of our student days, so that in future life, we may turn its pages and revive memories of the joys and sorrows of our days at Tech High.

May it recall, especially, that fine spirit of loyalty and co-operation shown by faculty and students at all times.

Look not upon it for its faults and shortcomings, but realize that it holds between its covers our sincere efforts.

Dedicated

to

Miss Daphne Ransom

It is to you and what you have stood for, and what you have meant to us and Tech High, that we, in love, adoration and high respect dedicate this the first volume of the Technique.

May it ever keep strong the tie of love and comradship that binds us.

CLASS PROPHECY

I CAME from Mars. I came upon the earth when I was a boy of twelve. How? Ask me not. I only remember that one night I fell asleep and when I awoke I was in a strange world. I have only faint memories of the world from which, by some cruel fortune, I was snatched, to be cast adrift upon a world so unlike my Mars which is filled with happiness, and whose inhabitants accomplish things that men upon the earth will proclaim as impossible for thousands of years to come.

The first night I was upon the earth I discovered that I could tell the past, present, or future of any individual by simply gazing intently for a few moments upon the familiar planet above me. It would send out rays of light which would immediately take the form of pictures. Realizing that I had been endowed with some supernatural power, I learned the English language and opened a studio in New York City.

While I was meditating over some marvelous revelations one night, a lady and a gentleman entered my studio. I learned that they were Dr and Mrs. Frank Biggers and that the latter had once answered to the name of Marie Myers. They had heard of my prophetic ability and had come to find out the whereabouts of their old Senior classmates. Mrs. Biggers produced a careworn volume, the first edition of the "Technique," and showed me the pictures of each individual so that I might recognize them as they appeared before me. I studied the faces several moments and then looked out of the window in the direction of my beloved and all-wise planet. As I gazed upon it, rays of light began to encircle it. These slowly formed themselves into a picture, an immense factory with a large dazzling sign across the front, bearing these words: "The Mobley-Broom Chewing Gum Company."

Ernest Mobley, President
Mary Broom, Vice-President

This vision faded and another succeeded it: This was of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. The luminous marquee announced that Miss Clara Belle Biggers would appear in concert that night. Judging from the crowd at the entrance, I knew that Miss Biggers was one of the leading artists of the day.

In the next scene one of New York's seventy-five story office buildings loomed up before me. The huge sign in front informed me that the building was being constructed by the noted Architectural-Engineering Firm, Carpenter & Berry.

The succeeding picture showed a vast auditorium that I recognized to be the Senate Chamber of the United States. There in one of the chairs, sat a young woman. She bore an odd resemblance to someone in the group of '29, though she was older and more dignified. I soon decided, however, that she was no other than Evelyn Hurt. Noticing the scene further, I recognized the speaker on the floor as Ernest Selvy.

A United States Postal Service Plane now flew across the horizon. The skillful pilot within proved to be Oren Hart.

My visitors were quite excited by this time and begged me to continue. For a few seconds I closed my eyes to shut out the intensity of the rays of light. When I again looked up at the heavens, the pictures came even more rapidly. First, the golden glory of an orange grove met my eyes. Standing in the shade of one of the trees was Pauline Ross. A very contented expression showed that she was "Monarch of All She Surveyed"—not only of the orange grove, but of her husband, R. K. Brown, Jr., who was a successful California orange grower.

The central figure in the next picture was an automobile. As the car was of an unusual type, I looked for the name and it was, "Clark."

A magnificent temple of learning, surrounded by beautiful shrubs, walks, and flowers next came into view. I could see engraved in the marble above the entrance Charlotte Tech High School. In a luxuriously furnished office within, which I knew to be the principal's, sat Dr. Forest T. Selby, quite gray and wrinkled, and, if possible, a little stouter, giving instructions to his secretary, Ethel Kerr.

A race track now stretched out before me. Thinking that I might find one of the members of the class there, I scanned the faces of the racers and recognized James Thompson.

A scene, differing vastly from the last, was now visible. A little mission church in China was filled with new converts. Their voices, led by Frances Alexander and Margaret Price, were raised in an anthem of praise. A wondrous revival appeared to be taking place in the hearts of the natives. What a wonderful work was being done by these two faithful missionaries, I thought, as the picture faded.

I now saw a beautiful library building. Lorena White came down one of the aisles, stopped, and looked with pride upon a section of poems which bore her name.

The next picture featured an exclusive millinery and ladies' ready-to-wear shop in a large city. On a very unique sign in front I read, "Dartha's Shop."

The scene now shifted to one of the leading theaters on Broadway. Upon the screen was flashed some very valuable information. I learned that Luther Carter was one of Warner Brother's most reliable directors. Mary Orr was starring in "The Flying Flapper," the scenario of which was arranged by the popular writer, Lucile Swaringen.

I now turned to my visitors. "But kind prophet," said Mrs. Biggers, "you have omitted our dear old class president, Nell Dellinger. Do please look again and reveal to us her fate." My eyes were growing weary but I could distinguish faintly a cozy little bungalow on a beautiful hill. Within was enshrined love and happiness. Nell was the heroine, and "Steve," the hero.

My visitors left after this last picture vanished, somewhat awed but not believing in the least. It is thus that I go along the road of Life picking out my meager existence in unutterable loneliness, always disbelieved when I tell my prophecies which always prove true.

ISHMAEL HOUSE, Prophet.

CLASS POEM

Dear old Tech High School
And friends we love so well
The time has come for us to go
And to say to you, farewell.

As we travel along life's pathway
O'er mountains great and small,
Tech High memories shall uplift us
Should we ever waver or fall.

We ne'er forget you, dear teachers
You've steered us through many a gale.
You helped us when we were drifting,
Through deep waters, you helped us sail.

And special honor goes to one
To her, our true thanks we extend
For her love and service among us
Miss Ransom, our teacher and friend.

LORENA WHITE.

CLASS SONG

Tune: Will My Dreams Come True

The time to leave is drawing near
We soon must say good-bye,
And leave our classmates, teachers dear,
Our friends, and Ole Tech High.
We start out now to play the game
In battles, we'll take part.
We'll always love and honor you,
Dear Tech, with all our heart.

Chorus

Farewell Tech High, friends, teachers true,
Before we go away
We have a word to say to you
Who've helped us on Life's way.
Our memories of Tech High will last
Forever and for aye.
We love the best school that's on earth
Farewell, Tech High, to you.

LUCILE SWARINGEN,
ETHEL KERR.

Last Will and Testament of Seniors

State of North Carolina
County of Mecklenburg

WE, the Senior Class of Tech High, of said state and county, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do make this our last will and testament, hereby revoking all wills heretofore made by us.

We wish our executor, as soon as possible after our departure, to dispose of the following:

SECTION I

Article I—To the class of 1930, we bequeath the privilege of following our most illustrous footsteps and the honor of occupying the front seats in chapel which we, the class of 1929, have just vacated. They also are to come into possession of our intelligence, prosperity, high ideals, dignity, amiable disposition, and good looks.

SECTION II

Article I—To various individuals of the Junior Class and Faculty we make these important and generous gifts, trusting that they will be duly appreciated.

Nell Dellinger wills her miniature gold football to William Pittman with the hope that he will win a mate for it next year. She wills her executive ability, tact, and good natured disposition to the incoming Senior Class President.

Ishmael House leaves his surplus number of A's to Nixon Caldwell.

Walter Clark wills his position of "school operator" to Jack Plummer.

Oren Hart wills his ability to get free service in the Auto Shop to his brother, Ernest.

Lucile Swaringen wills her adeptness in Shorthand to the "Keever Twins," and her reddish curly locks, which signify intelligence, to Mildred Green and Bessie King.

Ethel Kerr wills all of her typing awards to Lee Mullis. She wills her "cashier ability" to Charles Boyles.

James Thompson wills the remaining part of "old Faithful" to Clarence Rogers, with the condition that he will not make her run over seventy-five miles an hour on rough roads.

Mary Orr wills her "ever-ready" vanity case to Mae Hopkins.

Pauline Ross and Mary Broom will their ability to make friends quickly, in a new environment, to Welva Helderman and Nora Morton.

Margaret Price's "surplus avoirdupois" is to be divided equally between Lou Barbour and Helen Daniels.

Lorena White leaves her harp playing talent to Mae Smith, and her poetical ability to Evelyn Troutman.

Evelyn Hurt leaves her oratorical ability to Evelyn Deaton and Beulah Armstrong.

Frank Biggers leaves his popularity with the girls to John Cullingford.

James Berry wills a "patented giggle," which has brought its owner much pleasure as well as embarrassment, to Helen Osborne.

Ernest Selvy leaves his big feet to Charles Fisher and hopes that he will leave footprints on the sands of time.

Clara Belle Biggers leaves her "money collecting ability" to Thelma Helms and Elizabeth King. Her ability at impromptu speaking she wills to Annie Heintz and Evelyn Horton.

Dartha Barefoot leaves her quiet disposition and modest ways to Eloise Marvin.

Marie Myers leaves her sweet voice and demure manner to Estelle Short and Loma Wagner.

Ernest Mobley wills his fondness for wood working to Howard Nates. He wills his loyalty to his Native State, "Georgia," to Estelle Biggers.

R. K. Brown, Jr., wills his "argumentative ability" to Annie Mae Cooke and Chloie Conder.

Frances Alexander wills her sweet and lovable ways to Eddie Lucas and Gertrude Walsh.

Luther Carter wills his position as usher at the Broadway Theatre to the boy or girl who best "fits" his uniform.

To Mr. Selby we leave our sincere thanks for all he has done for us. We also leave a request that he will continue his custom of singing "the first verse of America" at every assembly program.

To Miss Abernethy we leave the hope that she may some day have a French class with which she can really converse in that difficult language.

To Miss Underwood we will all of our perfect typewriting copies with the wish that on next Hallowe'en night she make of them a beautiful bonfire.

1. To Miss Myers we leave our deepest gratitude for easing our many "ills and pains."

2. To Miss Clegg we leave all our knowledge of "dates" with the hope that she may use them to good advantage.

3. To Miss Kittles we leave our young and foolish ways.

4. To Mr. Hoon we leave our thanks for all of the "gas" he has wasted on us.

5. To Miss Russell we will the hope that she may some time have the opportunity of putting into practice for herself the "Science of Cooking" which she has so successfully taught us.

6. To Mr. West we leave our sincere wishes for a very successful future.

7. To Mr. Littell we leave a reserve tank for his New Nash so that he may be saved the frequent embarrassment of "giving out of gas" while taking his lady friends home.

8. To Miss Ransom we will all our returned English papers, hoping they may be of valuable service to her in the instruction of classes less brilliant than the class of '29.

9. To Miss Meining, Miss Manship, Miss Kinder, Miss Clary, and Miss McDuffie, who have but recently come among us, we leave the hope that they like Tech High as well as it likes them and that they will all return next year.

Lastly, we do appoint as executor of this our last will and testament, our true friend, Mr. F. T. Selby.

Done and signed this, twenty-eighth day of February, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine.

(Signed) SENIOR CLASS OF '29.

James Thompson: "Gee, but I'd like to see it work!"

Miss Clegg: "What inventions have done most to help people up in the world?"
Dartha Barefoot: "The elevator and the alarm clock."

Mary Broome: "Is your boy friend a lady killer?"
Pauline Ross: "I'll say he is—he starves 'em to death."

Ernest Selvy drove over to Matthews one day and left his car in the public square.
"Here," yelled a policeman, "you can't park your car there."
"What you got the sign up there for then? Don't it say 'Fine for Parking Automobiles?' "

Frank: "I always say what I think."
Nelle: "I wondered why you were so quiet."

James Berry: "Can a person be punished for something he hasn't done?"
Miss Kittles: "Of course not."
James Berry: "Well, I haven't done my geometry."

Clara B. Biggers: "Are late hours good for one?"
R. K. Brown: "No, but they are good for two."

Mr. Littell: "Luther, it gives me great pleasure to mark you 85 on your examination."
Luther: "Why not make it 100, Mr. Littel, and give yourself a real thrill?"

Elizabeth, I hope that with the determination and patience that you possess — your life will be a long and successful one — .

April 17, 1929

Ellen Mauchip
Hartsville, S.C.

Sincerely yours,
Foust Selby.

I'm so glad, Elizabeth, you let your "devoted cousin" persuade you to come to Teah High this year. If you see it must that I could have the pleasure of having you in my English class and it has been a real pleasure.

Sincerely,
Daphne B. Linam.
Ninds, Georgia.

THE TRUE ATMOSPHERE OF SCHOOL AND COLLEGE

WE endeavor, in producing school annuals, to render a helpful and constructive service directed toward enabling a student staff to get out a representative, distinctive book within their budget.

In connection with our new and modern printing plant we maintain a large Art and Service Department where page borders, cover designs, division pages, and complete decorative and illustrative motifs are created and worked out.
